

PARTY-LOCK AT MIAMI ART FEST

OF all the eccentric libertines who partied hard at Art Basel, the bigger-than-ever convention in Miami, photographer David LaChapelle seemed to have the most fun — or maybe it was the naked woman in the pool.

At Wednesday's bash at the luxurious new Setai resort, thrown by art publisher Taschen, the nude with Donatella Versace-esque blond hair stood in the middle of the swimming pool lazily flipping through a Taschen coffee-table book. Soon, a lot of aquanauts joined her, including LaChapelle, who was stroking Esther Williams-like in the moonlight, but wearing all his clothes.

Maybe his duds were drip-dry. LaChapelle turned up later with "two women in formal dresses" at nightclub Mynt, where they were "drinking bottles of vodka and jumping on the furniture and slam dancing," a spywitness laughed. "They were completely wasted and out of control."
