

Collecting Contemporary

By Adam Lindemann

Part guidebook, part tell-all, this provocatively illustrated title takes readers inside the white-hot contemporary art market. Written by telecommunications heir Lindemann, who not only collects, but is the backer behind a new Chelsea gallery, it offers a how-to guide to navigating the always exciting, frequently confounding, occasionally treacherous high-stakes contemporary art scene. In addition to a helpful glossary and calendar of not-to-be missed shows and sales, it features dish from 41 heavyweight players, including LVMH director Bernard Arnault, art publisher, collector and speculator Peter Brant, downtown gallerist/impresario Jeffrey Deitch and the notoriously elusive power dealer Larry Gagosian.
