

Girls Allowed

When we were teenagers we spent our pocket money on crisps, nudie mags and buying ciggies off the hard lads who used to hang about the school gates. Not so photographer David LaChapelle, who, at an age when most normal kids are getting blitzed on Thunderbird, he was getting commissions for pretentious New York art magazines. Over the years LaChapelle has carved out a niche for himself as the THE photographer of our times, covering himself in glory with ultra-colourful snaps of very fit ladies – and pop stars – being all sexy. Down with the likes of Tupac and Pammy Anderson, LaChapelle's new book has enough pictures of ladies in no clothing to make this worth 15 minutes of any wrist's time. Bonza.
