Ed Fox: Glamour From The Ground Up (Taschen, £24.99)

Despite graduating with honours from art school, it took several years for photographer Ed Fox to be taken seriously, as he steadfastly insisted on only shooting nudes. But looking at some of the smoking hot mommas he gets to capture with his lens, who can blame him?

But what really singled Fox out from other photographers was his fascination with feet. A self-confessed foot fetishist, his life's work has been based on his obsession with the humble foot. 'The attractions of the foot, like the rest of a woman's body, are intriguing and a mystery,' he says. 'I don't really want to know why. I want to spend the rest of my life trying to figure it out with the answer just beyond reach.'

Following his long held passion, fetishist extraordinaire Fox has finally released his very own book of fantastic stills, featuring picture after picture of seriously lovely tootsies, more often than not attached to the leg of a rather divine lady.

No doubt due to the magic this man creates with his lens, Glamour From The Ground Up features a veritable feast of fetish model royalty (and their feet) from Aria Giovanni to Ginger Jolie and Tera Patrick to Belladonna. Fans of Dita Von Teese will also be pleased, as anyone who's seen her show will know that burlesque is pretty damn dull when it comes to revealing the rude bits, and Dita's crowd are often left crying out for more. Fortunately, Fox has managed to get her out of her smalls, so we get to see her lady garden as nature intended (assuming God created waxing).

From serious foot fans to photography enthusiasts to run-of-the-mill admirers of naked hotties, everyone will love this gorgeous book.
