Now in its fifth installment, Architecture Now! 5 has carried on with the quality and class of previous editions. For those new to the series, Architecture Now is an ongoing project documenting the work of the most innovative and influential architects across the globe.

The book not only features the works of the world's most well known and respected architects but also features newcomers and this time even branches into the work of some landscape architects.

The book runs from A-to-Z listing architects by surname and features background information about each Architect as well as detailing recent and current projects, biographies, contact details and websites.

It goes without saying that the photographs in the book are glossy, high quality and truly inspiring. Author, Philip Jodidio himself studied art history and economics at Harvard University and has written numerous books on contemporary architecture.

Most of all, from this edition we loved the clean, crisp layouts and succinctness of the information which allowed plenty of room to showcase the stunning projects and photography.
