READING: arts and architecture

If you're tired of waiting for the Desert Living Magazine retrospective (due out in September, 2012), then maybe you should think about one that's available now. We recommend Taschen's new collection of Arts & Architecture Magazine, containing every issue from 1945 to 1954. At the time, Arts & Architecture was a leading journal that not only helped put many architects on the map—Neutra, Ellwood, and Eames among them—but focused on the art, music, politics, and social issues of post-war America. This $700, 10-box magazine collection will fulfill the appetite of die-hard Mid-Century Modern buffs and look good while doing it. —MJ
