Now you can enjoy the pop surrealist weirdo's works in the privacy of your own home with the release of "Pinxit," (meaning "painted by" in Latin), featuring work from Ryden's exhibitions The Meat Show, Bunnies & Bees, The Tree Show and more. Yoshitomo Nara, Carlo McCormick and culture critic Kristine McKenna weigh in on Ryden's work in a series of essays; to top it off, there will only be 1,000 editions released, each one signed by the artist.

"Pinxit" is published by Taschen Books. An opening party in honor of the collection will be held Thursday, March 1 at Taschen in Beverly Hills, so get your fancy outfit ready and strut your stuff down to the bookstore.
