

Back after a short break to deal with... life. Just an outfit, warm colors and lots of prints and layers. Helps me deal with the cold.

ALSO, just because pink cheers me up, and just because it fits in 100% with where my mind has been the past few months: do you know Keel's Simple Diary?

The perfect present, for a loved one or for yourself. This diary consists of templates in a way, short, thoughtprovoking and fun questions that make keeping a diary a lot easier. The older I get and the more I live, the more I'm aware of how important it is to keep a track of all of your memories and experiences. This blog is a good way to do that, but of course I don't share everything on here. An oldschool, private diary would be perfect, but I always feel that starting to write is such a hurdle to overcome. I'm telling you, if these existed in Dutch I would own one in every color! And for my French speaking readers: Taschen is bringing out a French edition come May, available in the Brussels Taschen store for only 12€. You can download it as an Iphone app as well! Go get it! And let me know when I can buy one in Dutch!

op 9:29 PM Geplaatst door Annebeth 17 Comments and 3 Reactions

Labels: diary, HM, leopard, new look, outfits, pinkie, River Island