London's rich history as a city is collected in the new book, London: Portrait of a City. The photography book captures the residents, architecture, streets, and style of London town told through some never-before-seen photographs as well as quotations and essays. "From Chelsea girls to Hoxton hipsters; from the power to glory," London is given a wide look from the Victorian time to present day Olympics.

Coming in September from Taschen. Available from Amazon
